

Greg Rolles

During an anti-war protest in 2014 I was assaulted by SAS soldiers. The details I will not write for fear of re-traumatizing myself or others. These are torture tactics applied and taught by US Special Forces, under the umbrella of JSOC (joint special operations command), of which the Australian SAS operated under. In 2020, in the Brereton Report, it became clear that soldiers from the same unit had murdered people, including children in Afghanistan. It should not be a surprise, given how 4 Australian citizens on Australian soil could be treated by our military- trained by the US. And how it was largely ignored by the Australian media and peace movement. To this day i still have PTSD, panic attacks and Generalised Anxiety Disorder stemming from this event. What damage have Australian Special Forces, trained by and with the US Special Forces done around the world?