

Joan and Alan McColl

We submit that spending money on climate change, the unique and special environment we have in Australia and our first nations people rather than spending it on easily out-dated would bring much more benefit to not only the present generation, but to our children and grandchildren.